

Katherine Rowe

Professor of English, Bryn Mawr College

A Walking Guide for Virtual Shakespeare

Monday, October 10, 2011

4:30 pm

Digital Visualization Theater
Jordan Hall of Science

Katherine Rowe (Ph.D., Harvard) teaches and writes about literature and media change. Trained as a scholar of Renaissance drama, she turned her attention to questions of media history and adaptation. A recipient of grants from the NEH, the Mellon Foundation, and the PA Department of Education that support her work in media history, Prof. Rowe is Associate Editor (responsible for the online edition) of The Cambridge World Shakespeare Encyclopedia and currently serves on the Association of Departments of English Executive Committee.

Sponsored by Department of English, OIT Academic Technologies, Kaneb Center for Teaching and Learning, and the English Graduate Student Association